GENTLEMEN,—We beg to inform you that we have this day entered into partnership as AUCTIONEERS, STOCK and STATION AGENTS, STOCK SALESMEN, Agents for the Sale of House and Landed Properties and Station Produce, such as Wool, Tallow, Hides, and Sheepskins. Our business will be carried on at 246, Pitt-street, Sydney, in the premises heretofore known as Martyn's Horse Bazaar, under the style of DAWSON and CO. Mr. Dawson, as you may possibly be aware, has already been in business in Sydney as an Auctioneer, Stock and Station Agent, &c., for a period of 13 years, during which he has acquired a thorough knowledge of the markets and their requirements, together with a complete acquaintance with the various buyers of fat and store stock.
Mr. SHAW gained his business knowledge in the office of the well-known mercantile firm of Gilchrist, Watt, and Co., with whom he served for some sixteen years, and until lately he held the position of Chief Clerk and Correspondent with them.
Mr. COX is an old and experienced Squatter, and a competent judge of Stock, Wool, &c. To the growing of Wool and breeding of Stock a good many years of Mr. Cox's life have been devoted.
With reference to the STABLES and YARDS attached to our premises, we beg to say that they will be strictly reserved for the accommodation of STOCK placed in our hands for bonâ fide sale, and for imported Stock. Dealers' horses will only be received when for positive sale.
At HOMEBUSH we have ample paddock accommodation for Stock consigned to us for sale; and until Central Sale Yards are established, we propose to sell Cattle and Sheep at our yards there. Horses we shall sell at the Camperdown yards and at the Stables (only broken in horses being sold at the latter) twice a week, viz., on Tuesdays and Fridays.
LAMBS, CALVES, &c., will be received for sale at the Castlereagh-street entrance to our yards, and sales thereof will be held every Thursday.
OUR CHARGES will be kept down as much as possible in all cases.
OUR SALE ROOMS are commodious, and occupy a central position; and we have ample accommodation for the storage of Produce consigned to us for sale.
In GOULBURN we shall be represented by Mr. J. W. STAMFORD, who has already acted as agent there for Mr. Dawson for some time; and we have full confidence in recommending him as a first-class salesman and good judge of stock.
Soliciting your support and influence,
We are, your most obedient servants,
THOMAS DAWSON

The Waimea (s.) crossed the Richmond River bar at 9.30 a.m. on Wednesday, passed Smoky Cape at 4.30 a.m. on Thursday, and berthed alongside the Corporation Wharf at 11 a.m. on Friday. She experienced light southerly winds to Seal Rocks, and strong S.E. with thick hazy weather and incessant rain from there to Sydney. Her cargo consists of 2555 pieces dressed pine, 1371 pieces undressed, 1458 pieces box stuff, 294 bags maize, 45 hides, 6 casks tallow, 5 casks molasses, 1 case eggs, 1 coop poultry, 2 cases arrow-root, 1 bag honey, 7 pieces cedar, 41 bags oysters, and sundries. The schooner Sarah Ann, the property of Mr. Vickery, and which was driven ashore on the Sandy Beach, inside the Richmond River bar, during the gale of the 17th March, has, we learn from Captain Turner, of the steamer Waimea, been got afloat again on Saturday last, apparently uninjured. As she was to some extent embedded in the sand, a trench was dug round her and she was then hove off the bank.

The Ballina (s.) left Grafton at 10 a.m. on the 17th instant, crossed the bar at 7 p.m., passed the Clarence, passed Smoky Cape at midnight, Seal Rock Point at 2 p.m. on the 19th, and entered Sydney Heads at 7 a.m. on the 20th. From the Clarence to Smoky Cape experienced moderate westerly winds and fine weather, from Smoky Cape to Seal Rocks light variable winds and thick rainy weather; and from there to Sydney fresh easterly winds and similar weather. Passed the Agnes Irving (s.) at 8 a.m. on the 18th, seven miles south of the Clarence, and the schooners West Hartley and Octoroon ten miles north of the Bellinger. The Ballina brings the following cargo: 1609 bags maize, 33 bales wool, 293 hides, 10 casks beef, 97 bags bones, 13 cases eggs, 2 coops fowls, 99 oz. gold, and sundries.

H.M.S. Blanche arrived yesterday from Brisbane; her cruise has been to the Islands in Torres Straits, the particulars of which have already appeared. She is docked to-day at Mr. Wichbert, in the Pitt-row Dry Dock, for the purpose of sighting her bottom.

The clipper schooner Susannah Booth, Captain Clulow, arrived yesterday from the Fiji Islands. She sailed on the 26th ultimo, and has experienced very heavy weather, violent gales having prevailed from E.S.E and N.E. She reports the arrival of the Norman, hence, at Savenua, and also that the Young Australian would leave for Sydney on the 27th ultimo.

The Wonga Wonga (s.), having been placed on the A. S. N. Co.'s slip, and thoroughly cleaned and painted, was launched yesterday, and is now completing her coaling. Her passenger accommodation has been fully taken up, and she will leave for Honolulu, via Auckland, on the 28th instant, carrying the English mails for transmission via San Francisco.

The Helen Macgregor left Grafton on the 18th instant at 8 a.m., crossed the bar on the 19th at 7 a.m., passed Smoky Cape 8 p.m. same day. She experienced strong breezes from S.S.E., with rain, and thick weather, and high sea throughout. MAY 19TH, 1870. CIVIL RECKONING.

The Sydney Morning Herald.

SATURDAY, MAY 21, 1870.

THE University Commemoration will be held to-day. The ceremonial has lost something of its novelty, but every year must increase the substantial interest connected with the celebration. As time rolls on, additions are made to the number of persons who regard the institution as their alma mater. Many of them have already entered upon public life, and have taken honourable rank in the various professions—the pulpit, the bar, and the practice of medicine.

The advance of the University has not been so rapid as some anticipated. It was supposed that the roll of students would be larger than it is. A very great expense has, indeed, been incurred in connection with the affiliated colleges. The small number of students shown by their reports would imply either that they were premature, or that in their constitution there is something of unfitness which it is proper to detect and remove. It is possible that the want of greater success may be attributable to both causes. It must, however, always be recollected that such institutions are not for the time present only, that they require to gather around them the strength which their very existence has contributed if not to create, yet to concentrate. This process now seems to be clearly discovering itself in various ways. A higher standard has been established,—laudable aspirations awakened. Private and public teachers have been inspired by this ambition as well as their pupils. They have had an object in view beyond the walls of the schoolrooms. The masters have known that there would be a time when their success would be subjected to a searching examination, and the scholars have seen before them a competition where success is conditional on labour. The various religious bodies are bringing their chief educational establishments within a few steps of the University. The two self-supporting colleges have shown by the result of their efforts that they are not far behind those more favoured by the State. Time is thus required to test the fitness of a scheme, and the old maxim of political economy, that the supply creates the demand, may perhaps be as applicable to a scholastic as to any other kind of enterprise. The University of Sydney is drawing from the neighbouring colonies a part of its pupils. Thus, when the spirit of rivalry which disdains to admit any sort of superiority shall be chastened by the difficulties of planting such institutions, the colleges and University itself may be able to show that our educational resources are a benefit not only to New South Wales, but to the entire Australian world.

Rome, says the proverb, was not built in a day. It took ages to establish in permanence the Universities of Europe, but their growth, though slow in the beginning, was never arrested except by the decay of the nations which planted them. Wherever the passion for knowledge is extinguished, liberty shows a decline. Liberty and light have always advanced and promoted each other. The forms of development may, indeed, be determined by the peculiarities of the age, but wherever men have congregated to learn, they have kindled a desire to be free. Liberty is only truly such where it is the ally of wisdom and knowledge. That we may continue a free people, not in the rugged independence of a mountaineer, or in the wild license of a corrupt capital, but in the true spirit of constitutional and legal liberty, we must mark, learn, and inwardly digest the Word of God, and familiarise ourselves, under its purifying and softening principles, with the attainments of science and history of men.

We are not aware whether the present conditions of University education satisfy fully the exigencies of either the devout or the liberal spirit. It is, however, adapted to the state of transition through which the world is now passing. It leaves certain branches of knowledge to be acquired under an ecclesiastical bias, while it furnishes the means of mental culture to all sects and classes of the people. It is, of course, in the power of Professors to warp the minds of youth, under whatever formal guarantee or restriction they may exercise their functions. Professors of a University like our own, if not restrained by considerations of fairness and equity from abusing their trust, would have but little claim to confidence by subscribing to the most rigid creed and the most orthodox opinions.

The bright spot in the present colonial prospect is reflected from the noble efforts made by all sections and denominations of people to promote education. The very conflict of ideas on the subject shows how warm is the interest in this great concern of families and nations. The reign of the democracy is inevitable. Appeals to the judgment of the many have been repeatedly made within the last thirty years, and popular power has everywhere increased its strength until it has become irresistible. The voice of the multitude, if not instructed, is terrible. It does not judge, but it condemns; it cries "Not this man, but Barabbas." Like the voice of many waters, it announces itself in devastating violence. The multitude cannot govern, but they will choose our Governors, and in their anger sweep them away.

Our readers will recall the eloquent denunciations of the late Reform Bill by Mr. ROBERT LOWE, which gave new power to the many. He was not so wrong in his apprehensions as unguarded in their enunciation. We have only seen the first results of a reform which has changed the centre of power. Mr. LOWE, however, announced, on the triumph of that measure which he so earnestly opposed, that education was the only hope of the ages to come. It is, perhaps, more than this; it is their assurance. Education may, indeed, lead to many controversies, of which the people at large will claim to be arbiters; but if the sovereignty of popular opinion shall lead to a better comprehension of human rights,—if, while it enforces the duties, it shall render more secure the legal possession of property,—if it should lessen the power of demagogues, by suppressing the grievances which raise the platform of sedition,—if it should protect the weak against the strong, confirm the freedom which it has conquered for the slave,—if it should succour poverty without insult, and promote association without inspiring the desire of tyrannic domination,—if it should destroy national prejudices, while explaining and upholding national rights,—if it should open the Courts of Justice to the poor, and make law resistless to determine the controversies whether of individuals or of nations,—if it should do all this, then its enthronement on the ruins of ancient despotisms may be hailed as the dawn of a new era to mankind. At all events, it is a common education, guided by a higher and more systematic culture, that can alone open a brighter future. There are in every society those whose physical and moral nature renders them objects of distrust and instruments of mischief. There are also men who act upon higher motives, or at all events upon a more enlightened plan than the people at large. The object of education is to diminish the first and to increase the last. We see how knowledge, if worthy of the name, delivers men from cruel prejudices,—how it saves them from dark superstitions and renders them indifferent to the incantations before which they once were driven to crimes, or overwhelmed with terrors; and although it may, for a moment, be possible to make partial knowledge an enemy of morality and religion, experience has shown that the most enlightened men that have ever lived have received with the greatest reverence the will of the Almighty, and have laboured with the most tender earnestness for the well-being of mankind.

"A little learning is a dangerous thing.
Drink deep or taste not."

Such was the warning of POPE, the poet. But any true learning, however small, is good, and those who taste the streams are not far from the fountains of truth.

ARE any of our readers so conservative in disposition or so wedded to the learning they acquired in the happy days of childhood as to grieve over the abolition of Troy weight? If so, their feelings are likely to be tried, for the members of the "Standards' Commission" have lately agreed on a report to her MAJESTY, which, with the accompanying evidence, has been laid before Parliament, and which recommends that as troy weight has no special recommendation, while its existence is only a complication, it should be legally abolished. As the recommendation is likely to be carried out, gold-diggers and gold buyers should prepare themselves for a coming change in the measures of the article in which they deal.

What was the origin and foundation of the troy system? No one seems to know. The Commissioners are only able to say that the troy pound is said to have been derived from the Roman weight, which was the hundred and twenty-fifth part of the large Alexandrian talent, this weight having been divided by the Romans into twelve ounces, just as the troy pound is. We learn also from the Commissioners' report that the earliest statute in which troy weight is named is one in the reign of HENRY V.; but it seems to have been in general use from the time of EDWARD I. How it came into use, or why it superseded the previous system, does not seem now to be ascertainable. The most ancient system of weights in England that can be discovered was that of the Moneyer's pound, or the money pound of the Anglo-Saxons, which was continued in use for some centuries after the Conquest, and which was then known as the Tower pound or the Goldsmith's pound. It contained twelve ounces of four hundred and fifty grains each, and this weight of silver coins was a pound sterling. This ancient Anglo-Saxon measure was abolished by by a statute of HENRY VIII., which first established troy weight as a legal weight for gold and silver. This system of weight seems to have found its way into popular use before it was recognised by the Legislature, but what was the special excellence which led to this preference is not perceptible. From the time of HENRY VIII., however, down to that of VICTORIA the English system of coinage has been based on troy weight. But its end seems now to be approaching.

Not many years ago troy weight was used for pharmaceutical purposes, but by the Medical Act of 1864 it was legally abolished and avoirdupois weight substituted. It appears from the evidence that some few old-fashioned medical men still continue the old style, but with them the use of it will die out.

Even in the bullion trade the whole of the troy scale is not used. The pound, for instance, is only a nominal weight. It appears from the evidence that no one in the trade speaks of a pound of gold or a pound of silver. The weight is always expressed in ounces. With respect to silver, the scale never goes lower than pennyweights, anything lower being expressed in fractions of a pennyweight. It is only in gold that the "grain" is used. In 1853 the Bank of England abolished the system of weighing by the troy scale, and weighed only in ounces and decimal parts of ounces. This was so far an attempt to introduce the decimal system, with the troy ounce as the basis. All who have to do business with the Bank in bullion have to adopt this system; but it has never penetrated into the trade generally. This fact is adduced as an illustration of the general indisposition of the people to adopt a metric or decimal scale.

Mr. HEATON, a Birmingham manufacturer, gave evidence to the effect that in preparing coinage for foreign countries they found the metric system adopted,—that in all their dealings with foreign countries the system was admirable for its simplicity, and especially valuable in large calculations. Mr. JOHNSON, the chief clerk of the bullion office of the Bank of England, gave similar evidence. As a banker he delighted in the simplicity of the metric system, but then he admitted that it was not popular with the multitude. For those whose transactions are large, the system is perfect, but for those whose transactions are small it is not so perfect. As Mr. JOHNSON, says "The bank represents the million sterling, but what becomes of the million persons? As far as the millions sterling are concerned, of course the metric system is an admirable thing; but as far as the million, looking upon it as population are concerned, it is another affair altogether." Mr. AIRY, the Astronomer Royal, takes the same view of the popular inclination, and in agreeing to the abolition of the troy weight suggests that the scale of descent should be by successive sixteenths.

In abandoning the troy scale, the Commissioners endeavour to find out whether it would be most acceptable to the public to substitute the decimal or the avoirdupois scale, and they found themselves unable to choose between the two; and they therefore recommended that it should be optional for the public to please themselves, intimating that the preference thus given would be some indication of the public inclination for or against the metric system. But though they do not decide on a substitute, they are unanimous that the troy scale should be abolished, and they recommend that after a period of ten years its use should be illegal.

Among the master manufacturers, the large dealers in bullion, a few months would suffice to establish the change; but the difficulty seems to be with the artisans engaged in working in gold and silver. How many of such persons there are does not seem to be very definitely ascertainable; but Mr. AIRY calculates that there are a thousand firms using troy weight in the Metropolitan district, and that this is probably equivalent to about 7000 workmen; while Mr. CHISHOLM, the warden of the Standards' Department, estimates that in the United Kingdom there must be about 50,000 workmen so engaged. It appears from the evidence that most of these workmen, though clever in their particular art, are deficient in general education, and that having all their lives thought in ounces, pennyweights, and grains, they would have great difficulty in thinking in any other scale, and that masters will have a great deal of trouble in getting them to reckon according to any new-fangled fashion. It will require almost a new generation of workmen to take kindly to a new system. But when the change is effected, it will be an improvement, as no one was able to defend the multiplicity of scales, or to give any reason why gold and silver should not be weighed in the same way as other commodities.

PUBLIC AMUSEMENTS.—The announcements of the various public amusements, operatic, theatrical, and others, will be found on the sixth page of to-day's Herald.

THE CAMDEN DISTRICT COURT.—Owing to Tuesday next being the Queen's Birthday, no business will be transacted at the above District Court before Thursday; the Court will, however, be opened pro forma on Tuesday, and adjourned till Thursday.

PORTER AND SHOE-BLACK BRIGADE.—A circular was recently published in the Herald, announcing the intended formation of a Porter and Shoe-Black Brigade, with the view of offering profitable employment to a class of boys who needed a helping hand to put them into the way of earning an honest and respectable livelihood. The brigade has been duly inaugurated, and, already, about eighteen boys go forth every morning, equipped with their box of blacking, and brushes, and take the stands which have been allotted to them. They have been provided with a blue serge jacket, with red trimmings, and a cap, bearing the words, "Shoe-Black Brigade." A number of boys have also been employed as porters; and they have been fitted with similar uniforms. Already the boys have earned considerable sums; and there can be little doubt that there is a profitable field of labour open to them. The committee of management are daily receiving additional applications for employment; and there is every promise of the brigade becoming a most useful institution. A room has been engaged in Elizabeth-street, near King-street; and a night school is about to be established there for the brigade.

FIRE.—About half-past 8 o'clock last night the fire bells raised an alarm of fire, which happily proved of little consequence. It appears that a quantity of paper was thrown upon the fire in a kitchen at the rear of Mr. Clark's draper's shop, on Brickfield-hill. The unusual blaze ignited the soot, which sent up a bright flame from the top of the chimney, illuminating the neighbourhood. A few buckets of water were thrown upon the fire, and it was soon put out. One of the Fire Insurance engines and No. 2 Volunteer engine arrived at the fire in the order named, but their services were not required.

EARTHQUAKE.—It is stated by a gentleman (says the Braidwood Liberal) who came up the Araluen mountain on Friday last that he felt a slight shock of earthquake, and noticed portions of the mountain bearing the appearance of having been blown up. A great number of landslips have taken place in that locality, which he believes were produced more by combustion than the rain.

REV. THOMAS SMITH.—FAREWELL SERMON.—At St. Peter's church, in this city, on Thursday evening, the Rev. Thomas Smith, incumbent of St. Barnabas, Sydney, preached a farewell sermon prior to his departure, early in the ensuing month, for Australia. The rev. gentleman selected for his text part of the 9th verse of the 23rd chapter of the Acts, "Let us not fight against God," and dwelt forcibly upon the mercy of God in the forgiveness of sins. There was a good congregation. After the service a special prayer meeting was held in St. Peter's schoolroom, at which earnest prayers were offered up for the safe voyage and future welfare of Mr. Smith and his family, and some Hereford friends, who are about to go out with him to Australia.—Hereford Times, 12th March.

VICEREGAL VISIT TO THE LUNATIC ASYLUM AT GLADESVILLE.

YESTERDAY, his Excellency the Earl of Belmore, the Honorable Charles Cowper, C.M.G. (Colonial Secretary), and the Honorable Captain Corry (Coldstream Guards), visited the asylum for insane at Gladesville. The party left the jetty near the Fort, in the forenoon, and were conveyed to the bayfacing the asylum in Mr. Cuthbert's beautiful steam yacht, Fairy. The weather was as cheerless and uncomfortable as it could well be, and the drizzling rain which prevailed for some hours in the middle of the day obscured the view in every direction. Not a gleam of sunshine occurred to reveal the beautiful scenery along the river, nor a gust of wind to clear off the haze which tinged every feature of nature with a dismal and monotonous hue. The interest of mere curiosity could certainly never have tempted the party to brave the discomforts of an excursion on the water yesterday; and had they have been actuated by other than a high sense of public duty and a deep sympathy for the unhappy sufferers whom they went to visit, they would most assuredly have deferred their inspection to some more favourable opportunity.

Arriving at the wharf opposite the principal entrance to the asylum, his Excellency was met by Dr. F. C. Norton Manning, the superintendent of the hospital for the insane at Gladesville. The party were conducted by that gentleman along the road which is being made by the patients to the wharf; and as they ascended the hill, on the summit of which the hospital is built, they passed between fine parterres, gay with chrysanthemums and other showy winter flowers, to the principal entrance gate. Passion and other vines already clothe a large portion of the boundary wall, erected on each side of the road, and between the walls and the flower-borders there are several young orange trees, which have made fine growth, and which, in a few years, will form a grove of luxuriant beauty. On the right of this approach is the vegetable and fruit garden, the produce of which forms no inconsiderable portion of the dietary fare of the inmates, and beyond this, at the head of the inlet, are the salt water baths. A boat-house is about to be built near the landing place, and we believe that the boat which has lately been available for the use of the hospital has proved a very valuable auxiliary to the means of recreation which the inmates now possess.

The site of the hospital is in many respects very advantageous. The recreation grounds command, in fine weather, extensive views of the lake-like scenery of the Parramatta River, which must exert a most beneficial influence on the mind of the unhappy being bereft of reason. The fact of nature is there so lovely that we trust it is no exaggeration to say that

"For his gayer hours
She has a voice of gladness, and a smile,
And eloquence of beauty; and she glides
Into his darker musings with a mild
And healing sympathy, that steals away
Their sharpness ere he is aware."

The buildings form a parallelogram. The central portion affords a residence for the superintendent, as well as offices, waiting-rooms, and other necessary appointments; the kitchen and other offices being placed in the yard at the back of them. The patients, who yesterday numbered 468 (236 men and 232 women), are, of course, separated according to sex, and they are further classified into four wards, as they may be tranquil or refractory. The quarters for the four classes of male patients form four quadrangles on one side of the entrance, and those for the women four on the other. The dormitories and dining-rooms, in all cases, open upon an airing ground, and they are all protected from the sun and rain by deep verandahs. The verandahs being flagged with freestone, are dry and cleanly. The airing grounds are turfed over, and have each one or more summer-houses, and two or three trees of ornamental foliage, which appear to have been planted within the last few years. There are also large recreation grounds—one for the men, and another for the women—irrespective of the airing groun

NOTES OF THE WEEK.

FROM THE 13TH MAY TO THE 20TH MAY.

CONSIDERABLE progress has recently been made in the Exhibition Building at Prince Alfred Park. The first contract for the same is in the hands of Mr. Young, the builder of the new General Post Office and of St. Mary's Cathedral.

The meteorological stations of Armidale, Goulburn, Deniliquin, Bathurst, Kiandra, Wentworth, Albury, George, and Sydney have been supplied with instruments for making observations.

At the Victoria Theatre, last Saturday night, a man named Alexander Stoddart, suddenly made himself conspicuous by wearing a hat with the word "Fenian" stuck upon the front. He was removed by the police, and was found to be of unsound mind.

His Royal Highness the Duke of Edinburgh is expected to arrive here on the 1st of August next.

On Monday last Mr. Forster, Minister for Lands, retired from office.

At a meeting of St. Andrew's School, in Pitt-street, on Monday evening last, steps were taken to purchase the adjoining school ground. About £200 was raised on the spot. The Metropolitan Bishop and the Dean were present.

A committee of ladies is to be appointed in connection with the Female Servants' Training School.

SUPREME COURT.—FRIDAY.

IN EQUITY.

Before his Honor the Primary Judge, Mr. Justice HARGRAVE.

MARCHANT AND ANOTHER v. RAYMOND AND ANOTHER.

This was a suit against the representatives of one Jude, of Emu Plains, deceased, to set aside a release of claims to his residuary estate, under his will, upon the ground that such release had been obtained by concealment of the interest devised. Also for an injunction to stay defendants from dealing with such estate, &c.

Mr. Gordon and Mr. C. J. Manning, instructed by Messrs. Stephen and Stephen, appeared for the plaintiff; and Sir James Martin, Q.C., Mr. Darley, and Mr. Owen, instructed by Messrs. Bolin and Salter, for the defendants.

His HONOR decreed that the release should be set aside except so far as it was a receipt for money, and without prejudice to any question that might arise on taking the accounts. Also that an injunction should issue to and by defendants from further dealing with the estate, and that a receiver should be appointed.

ALLEYNE v. MURRAY AND OTHERS.

This was a suit by a trustee, to be released from his trust. The argument was not concluded.

ALLEYNE v. MOWLE AND OTHERS.

The plaintiff in this suit was Dr. Alleyne; the defendants (seven in number) were Mr. Stewart M. Mowle, Colonel Gibbes, his son Augustus Gibbes, Sir Terence A. Roxburgh, Slade, and Spain, for the Messrs. Gibbes; the Attorney-General, instructed by Messrs. Allen, Bowden, and Allen, for Sir Terence Murray; Mr. Owen, instructed by Messrs. M'Carthy, Son, and Donovan, also appeared for the children of Sir Terence Murray to submit to the decree of the Court.

The suit was instituted by the plaintiff, one of the present trustees of a settlement executed on the marriage of Sir Terence Murray with Mary Gibbes, for the purpose of being discharged from the trusts of such settlement, and also praying to be relieved from liability under a deed of release and indemnity given by himself jointly with Mr. Mowle and Sir Terence Murray to the Messrs. Gibbes (the former trustees) on the occasion of the latter retiring from the trusts of the settlement.

The pleadings were very long and complicated; and voluminous oral and documentary evidence had been taken before the Master in Equity on behalf of the plaintiff and the defendant, Sir Terence Murray, which were read to the Court by the respective counsels.

The case was not terminated.

CENTRAL POLICE COURT.

FRIDAY.

Before their Worships the Police Magistrate, Messrs. Ostley, G. Hill, E. Campbell, Caraher, Hunt, Day, Levey, Cunninghame, and Solomon.

Four persons were fined for drunkenness, and one of them (Charles James) was further fined 20*s.*, or in default of payment to be imprisoned fourteen days, on conviction of having assaulted the constable who took him into custody.

Abraham Hickin and David Carstairs were charged by senior-sergeant Waters with having unlawfully and against the peace of our Lady the Queen agreed to fight a prize-fight. By Mr. Roberts: Cannot say whether the fight agreed upon has taken place. The defendants consented to be bound to keep the peace, and were ordered to enter into recognisances, each with two sureties in £20, to keep the peace six months.

Jane Dean, alias Johnson, charged with having stolen from the person of Donald M'Phee two pounds weight of gold, and sundries, appeared pursuant to remand; and by her side stood Mary Ann Smith, alias Hardiman, concerning whom constable Larkins deposed that he last night took her into custody on the charge, which she denied. He asked for a remand, believing that he will be able to show on evidence that Hardiman was one of the women in the house with M'Phee, and that on Monday she offered some gold for sale. Remanded until Monday.

James Iron was charged with a breach of the Insolvent Act. The information of Vincent W. Giblin set out that one John Taylor, of Deniliquin, being insolvent, his estate was sequestrated according to law, and that he (informant) suspects and believes that on or about the 29th January last, before the sequestration of Taylor's estate, one James Iron did receive and accept from the said Taylor an alienation of a certain part of his estate—to wit, a valuable security or lien upon crops, made to him by the said James Iron, to the value of £10 sterling and upwards, with intent to defraud the creditors of the said John Taylor, contrary to the Act in such case made and provided. Mr. Butler, instructed by Messrs. M'Carthy and Son, conducted the prosecution; Mr. Davis, instructed by Messrs. Levy and De Lissa, conducted the defence. Detective Bowden deposed that on the 13th April he apprehended the defendant Iron in Sydney, in the execution of the warrant produced; he made no reply to the charge. Vincent W. Giblin, general manager of the Australian Joint Stock Bank, a creditor in Taylor's estate, deposed that the defendant Iron is the person referred to in his information. By Mr. Davis: Mr. Robertson, of Deniliquin, solicitor, has acted in this matter on behalf of the bank; has heard from Robertson that he examined Taylor at Deniliquin, and before he (witness) made this complaint he read a copy of the evidence given by Iron at Deniliquin in the matter of Taylor's insolvency, as well as Taylor's own evidence; heard Taylor's examination in Sydney; read in Iron's deposition that no consideration passed from Taylor to Iron in respect of the lien on the crops, but that the transaction was wholly for Taylor's accommodation. George Lowe, of the Insolvency department of the Supreme Court, produced the papers in the compulsory sequestration of the estate of John Taylor, of Deniliquin. Thomas Robertson, of Deniliquin, solicitor, identified the signatures of James Iron and John Taylor to a document dated the 29th July, 1869, being a lien on growing crops, which document was registered on the 3rd August following, and was released on the 29th January, 1870; the bill of sale and the lien were prepared in his office; on or about the 26th July he had a conversation with Iron on the subject, the documents having been for some weeks awaiting signature; Iron said, "I owe Taylor the money, and it is right enough that he should be secured, but if the bank comes down upon him where shall I be?" witness replied that that was a matter for his consideration, but that he did not think that the bank would wind Taylor up, he having made an arrangement to pay by instalments; Iron then left; the document marked F is an assignment for the benefit of Iron's creditors, dated December, 1866, before the bill of sale or the lien on crops was executed, Iron made an arrangement with his trustees by which he obtained possession of Taragon Farm; Taylor undertook, in 1869, to retire certain bills made by Mr. Elliott in reference to that matter. By Mr. Davis: Understood that Iron was to send produce to Taylor, but did not understand that the proceeds were to be applied by Taylor in retiring Elliott's bills; understood quite differently; was at that time Taylor's attorney, and at the time of the conversation respecting the lien he was solicitor for the Joint Stock Bank; was never Taylor's solicitor in any case in which the bank was concerned. Thomas Devonald, sergeant in the police force, deposed that on the 27th November, 1869, he proceeded to Iron's place to execute a distraint warrant for the amount of £25, when defendant said that everything upon the premises were included in a bill of sale held by Mr. Taylor; in February again he went with another distress warrant, when he said that not so much as a plate in the kitchen belonged to him. Henry Smith, Sheriff's bailiff, deposed that on the 30th December last he saw Iron at Deniliquin, and told him that he had a warrant to distrain and satisfy a claim of £51 10*s.* 3*d.* and costs, and Iron replied that Taylor held a bill of sale over all his property, except two or three horses running in the bush. Adolph Rosenfeld, of Deniliquin, deposed that, on the 29th January last, Iron and Taylor came to his place, and he witnessed some writing on the back of two documents, and some money passed on that occasion between them, but cannot say how much. Remanded until Monday.

On the summons paper were seventeen cases, of which two were dismissed, three were postponed, and one was not prosecuted. Roger Maroney was fined 20*s.* for being the keeper of a dog which rushed at constable Bremner. Frank Underwood was fined 5*s.*, and John Collins and John Turner were fined 10*s.* each, for keeping open their public-houses for the sale of liquor on Sunday.

Wilkinson, charged with allowing the contents of his water-closet to soak from his premises in Windmill-street, was fined 20*s.*, with 5*s.* costs. RYDE.

[FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.]

THE petition (in favour of farming Ryde into a Municipal district) which was adopted at a public meeting a few weeks ago, has been signed by 200 persons, and forwarded to the Government for insertion in the Gazette.—The stonework of the new Wesleyan Chapel is now finished. It is a very neat and substantial piece of work, and is a credit to the contractor, Mr. Trier. The roof is in progress, and, should the weather be favourable, there is no doubt it will be completed in three or four weeks' time.—The Ryde Mutual Improvement Society gave an entertainment in the Oddfellows' Hall, on last Tuesday evening. The building was very nicely decorated for the occasion, and was quite filled by a numerous audience. The rendering of the songs and recitations gave entire satisfaction to the audience, who in a hearty manner expressed their approval of the same. Before the conclusion the committee presented Mr. William Bethune, their indefatigable secretary, with an address and purse of money as a mark of their esteem. The Secretary having thanked the gentlemen for the honour conferred upon him, the public present testified their approbation by giving three cheers.

PARRAMATTA.

[FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.]

CONCERT.—A numerously and fashionably attended concert was given at the School of Arts in this town, on Monday evening last. The performers were local amateurs forming the Parramatta Glee Club, who were assisted by Mr. E. H. Cobley, organist to the King's School. The object of the entertainment was the augmentation of the fund for liquidating the debt remaining upon St. John's School, and that object has been well attained indeed, for the proceeds must be something more than ordinarily substantial, as the hall was full to the doors, and the majority of those present occupied reserved seats. The amateurs, without exception, acquitted themselves admirably, the various soli, choruses, and glees being rendered in a very finished manner. Encores were quite the order of the evening, and protracted the length of the performance to a somewhat unusual hour; but, lengthy though it was, no one appeared to deem that a fault. Mr. Cobley's solo on the harp was a musical treat of no common kind, and was loudly redemanded. A subsequent solo on the piano by the same performer elicited a large amount of applause. Altogether it is to be hoped that the Parramatta Glee Club, having thus proved the sterling quality of their matériel, will afford this music-loving community further opportunities of gratifying its taste.

WESLEYAN MISSIONS.—The anniversary services in connection with the Parramatta branch of the Australasian Wesleyan Missionary Society were held in the Wesleyan Church, Macquarie-street, on Sunday last, and on the following evening there was a public meeting, at which Mr. James Byrnes, M.L.A., presided. After the proceedings had been opened by prayer, the meeting was addressed by the Revs. S. Wilkinson, S. Rabone, J. H. Fletcher, William Fletcher, James Phillips, R. Mansfield; by Messrs. J. Neale, J. Booth, and G. Hunt, and also by a native teacher named Matthias, who spoke in his mother tongue, and was interpreted by the Rev. W. Fletcher. The annual report of the parent society was read and several interesting facts were made known to the audience, who appeared much interested from first to last.

TEA MEETING.—On Tuesday evening a tea meeting was held at the School of Arts, in aid of the Building Fund of the Primitive Methodist Chapel decided to be erected by that body in Parramatta, and plans for which are now ready. The tea, which was a very well managed affair, was enjoyed by a large number,—members of the church and friends. It was succeeded by a public meeting, at which addresses were delivered by the Revs. J. H. Dash, W. A. Wilson, and J. A. Foggon.

POLICE COURT.—A case was heard this week at the Parramatta Police Court, in which an old man named Matthew Keogh, alias Matthews, was charged with having assaulted a boy named James Smith, aged five years, with intent to commit a felony. The evidence adduced, and which is of course unfit for publication, was sufficient to cause the Bench to commit the prisoner, who will take his trial at the next Quarter Sessions in this town.

ACCIDENT.—Last Wednesday evening, an accident occurred at Greystanes, Prospect, the residence of Mr. Walter Lamb, which it is feared will result fatally. It appears that a man in the employ of Mr. Lamb was engaged in some roofing operations at a height of twenty-five feet from the ground, when part of the roofing gave way, and he fell on the floor beneath, sustaining a fracture of the thigh, concussion of the brain, and an internal injury, the exact nature of which it is difficult to ascertain. The poor fellow was at once attended to under Mr. Lamb's personal directions, and a messenger was dispatched to Parramatta from whence he speedily returned with Dr. Cunningham who did all he could, but entertains faint hopes of the man's recovery. The name of this unfortunate man has not transpired.

THE FLOOD IN THE TUROSS RIVER.

(From the Moruya Telegraph, May 18.)

AT daybreak on Friday morning, 13th instant, the river at the ferry began to rise at a frightful rate, and Slawson (aided by J. Southam and Roberts from the silver mine, who happened to be staying in the house) with great difficulty got his wife and family safely away to Mr. Walsh's in the boat, the river roaring frightfully, and running in great waves, and the currents, which were running violently in all directions over Trunkstabella Flat hurling the boat against the trees, and making it very difficult to reach the high ground. Before they could return, the ferryhouse with all its contents had vanished. Slawson has lost everything—even to his children's hats and shoes. Such a scene of desolation I have scarcely ever witnessed. Trees are rent bodily up by the roots, and hundreds of tons of sand cover the spot and the approach to the ferry. In the early part of the morning was heard the rapid firing of a gun from the direction of Mr. Bell's house on the opposite side of the river. The punt was with some difficulty got in safety on Sunday morning.

At the Sandfirin, toward daybreak, on Friday morning, Mr. Bell found the water rising rapidly in his house, and shortly afterwards got his family (consisting of his wife and five children, the eldest a girl aged 17, and the youngest about 3 years old) on the roof, and when the house began to give way, removed them to a contiguous wheat stack, which, about 8 o'clock, began to float away, and was shortly carried down the flat and into the roaring, surging river. They floated down about three-quarters of a mile from the house, the sheaves continually slipping from the stack, when a sudden shock threw the living freight all off, with the exception of a little boy about nine years of age. Mr. Bell succeeded in catching hold of a branch, and by immense exertion eventually reached a place of safety, where he remained until about 2 a.m. on Saturday, and, after great danger and difficulty, reached Mr. M'Gregor's, the Bodalla Inn, at about break of day. Meanwhile the unfortunate Mrs. Bell and her family were driven by the force of the stream against the wheatstack, and the little boy helped them to scramble up with a piece of rope which happened to be on the stack, the sheaves continuing to slip away. They were now all on the stack with the exception of the father and the youngest boy. The eldest girl Lydia fancied she felt something warm at her feet, and screwing her toes about, drew up the little fellow, nearly suffocated, and black in the face. Still the stack kept on its fearful voyage, and now began to near two islands, one on each side of the river, where the current is very rapid. Lydia says she here pulled with a batten and paddle as well as she could until the stack providentially lodged against a tree on Wednesday Island. She then made it fast to two trees, and, as the water rose or fell, shifted the rope up or down. Luckily poor Mrs. Bell had three blankets on the stack—so the severity of the cold was not so much felt. The cat and dog came to them on the rick as well as a kangaroo rat. Two bullocks likewise tried to clamber on the rick, but were driven away by Lydia. Thus they remained that long day and weary night.

Mr. M'Gregor was watching the house from the range at the back, and when the stack began to go, rode home at full gallop with the intention of bringing a small dingy down the river to Bell's assistance. He jumped off his horse and was about to swim to the boat, which was tied to a rail, when the current broke it adrift, and it did not stop till brought up by a tree. He again started off for a boat at Stennett's farm, but his efforts to procure this were likewise unavailing. He then gave up all hope of seeing the unfortunate Bells alive. When Bell reached the inn in the morning, Mr. M'Gregor renewed his efforts. He this time succeeded in procuring the boat from Stennett's by means of which he got the dingy at the inn, and accompanied by James Caldwell and Ronald M'Lean, most courageously and gallantly started down the river to the rescue of the unfortunate family. They prospered on their daring and glorious errand, and, small as the boat was, succeeded, in spite of almost insuperable difficulties, in rescuing the whole family, of course very much exhausted, but, thanks to Almighty Providence, unhurt. Of the gallant and meritorious conduct of Messrs. J. M'Gregor, James Caldwell, and Ronald M'Lean, I forbear saying anything. Such conduct speaks trumpet-tongued for itself. Bell has lost everything. The fine seed farm is ruined. A subscription was raised on the spot so soon as they reached M'Gregor's, where they have been well cared for since.

Comerang has suffered severely, but I am informed not so much as might have been anticipated. The water was into the inn, and up to the counter in Mr. Brice's store. The blacksmith's house was nearly submerged. There is no news from the Gulf or from Eurobodalla. This account is necessarily imperfect, but I believe substantially correct.

FIJI.

FROM Fiji we have files of the Times to the 23rd April, from which we take the following extracts:—

A large, important, and influential meeting of the settlers of Taviuni was held at Vuna on the 6th April, with the object of opposing the views put forward in a pamphlet recently circulated, advocating the formation of an Independent Republican Government in Fiji. Mr. Holmes was unanimously called to the chair. Mr. M'Connell moved the first resolution, which was seconded by Mr. Macnamara,—"That we, the settlers of Taviuni earnestly protest against the formation of a Government in the Fiji Islands upon the principles of a Republic, as laid down in the published pamphlet, regarding those principles as highly dangerous to the peace, advancement, and prosperity of those islands; but that we would hail with delight laws sanctioned by a foreign Power to settle any disputes arising among the whites." Mr. Hamilton proposed, and Mr. Logan seconded an amendment to the effect that "an independent self-government is desirable," but the amendment had very few supporters, and the resolution was carried by a large and overwhelming majority. Mr. Hamilton then proposed the second resolution, which was seconded by Mr. Logan,—"That this meeting resolves that a Republic be formed, acknowledged by all foreign Governments, and conducted according to the principles agreed to by the Fijian public." Mr. Waters proposed an amendment, which was seconded by Mr. Tucker,—"That an attempt to form an Independent Republican Government is yet quite premature, and at the least injudicious." The amendment was carried almost unanimously, and the resolution fell to the ground. The meeting was informed from Tui Cakau that he would expect those favourable to a Republic to protect themselves from native violence.

A correspondent of the Fiji Times relates the following outrage by natives:—On Monday, the 21st March, the Viti Levu natives, working upon Messrs. H. B. and R. W. Smith's plantation, at Uladrusi, Vanua Levu, and numbering about sixty, watching their opportunity during the absence of Mr. R. W. Smith, rushed the dwelling-house and overpowered Mr. H. B. Smith, who of course was quite unprepared for such an event. After giving him (Mr. Smith) some rough usage, endeavouring to stab him, and threatening to kill him, they ransacked the whole of the premises, taking away everything they could carry, consisting of a large quantity of trade, fourteen muskets, ammunition, personal effects, &c., and retired to the neighbouring town of Na Baka. These men have been out about four months at this place, and have been conspicuous for their idle and insolent behaviour. About four weeks since they assaulted and abused Mr. H. B. Smith because he remonstrated with them for cutting down valuable cocoanut trees. Upon finding that nothing was done to them for this, they became more insolent, and a week since they assaulted with clubs and spears both of the Messrs. Smith; they (the Messrs. Smith), however, after a sharp struggle beat them off and got into their house, the natives following up, brandishing their clubs and spears, upon which Mr. R. W. Smith fired upon the ringleaders with a charge of duck shot and peppered three of them; upon receiving which they retired; the men were told the next day that three of the most prominent ringleaders must quit the plantation upon penalty of being shot if they remained, the rest could stay and work out their time, or go if they pleased; they hung about the premises until Monday when they rushed the house as above. As soon as Mr. H. B. Smith was released he went to Wai Ruku, the residence of Messrs. Shute and Odell; intelligence of the affair was sent along the coast, and Messrs. Smith, Hay, Simonet, and Odell, with ten Tanna men, proceeded and retook possession of Uladrusi, which they found deserted. The next morning, the 22nd instant, a message was sent to all the white residents requesting their attendance and assistance; word was sent to the depredators requesting them to return all the things they had stolen; numerous messages were exchanged with the natives during the day of the 22nd, fully telling them what the consequences would be if they persisted in keeping the things then in their possession; they were told that so many cases of this kind were occurring in Fiji that the white residents (at all events of this part of the group) were determined to put a stop to it, and protect their property. As the day wore away a large portion of the trade and personal effects were returned, the guns, money, and a few other things they determined to keep as the price of their labour, saying if we wanted the guns we must fight for them, as they were not afraid of us, and so on; the last message to them was "that if the guns, &c. were not returned that day, the 22nd, we, the whites, would go and fight them the next day." About midnight the white residents began to arrive, many having come twenty miles; after a brief rest, and a consultation, it was decided that we should at once invest the town (Na Baka), which is situated on a peninsula, and prevent the natives from escaping until further assistance (expected hourly) arrived, when we calculated upon taking the whole of the Viti Levu men prisoners. At about 3 a.m. on the morning of the 23rd on mustering our forces we found present seventeen whites, viz., Messrs. H. B. Smith, R. W. Smith, Simonet, Nicholls, Odell, Butler, Lydiard, Turpin, Boyd, Dodds, Davis, Jones, Gardiner, Anderson, Hayes, Pechey, and the captain of the Van Tromp, nine half-castes, ten Tanna men and a number of Sava Sava natives under the command of Tamai Asi Asi. We proceeded in two divisions to surround the town; owing to the rough nature of the ground to be traversed, and the impossibility of communicating with each other, one division reached the town slightly in advance of the other. Mere another difficulty occurred, as we did not wish to hurt any of the residents of Na Baka, but only those men who had pillaged the house, and of course the majority of us did not know the one from the other. The Viti Levu men, perceiving us, emerged from the different houses and made a stand, some presenting their guns and one firing upon us. After calling upon them to lay down their arms and surrender, and telling the Na Baka men to keep within their houses, we advanced upon them; they did not wait to receive our charge, but turned and fled; we pursued them and drove them on to the beach and opened fire upon them (this was about daybreak). The heavy rain during our march having damped our weapons, our fire did but little execution, some of the natives escaping along the beach to Nagigi, others took to the water and swam to a

TIMES GO BY TURNS.

[CONSOLATION FOR A.]

The lopped tree in time may grow again,
Most naked plants renew both fruit and flower,
The sorriest wight may find release of pain,
The driest soil suck in some moistening shower:
Time goes by turns, and chances change by course,
From foul to fair, from better hap to worse.

The sea of Fortune doth not ever flow;
She draws her favours to the lowest ebb;
Her tides have equal times to come and go;
Her loom doth weave the fine and coarsest web:
No joy so great but runneth to an end,
No hap so hard but may in fine amend.

Not always full of leaf, nor ever spring,
Not endless night, yet not eternal day;
The saddest birds a season find to sing.
The roughest storm a calm may soon allay.
Thus, with succeeding turns, God tempereth all,
That man may hope to rise, yet fear to fall.

A chance may win that by mischance was lost;
That net that holds no great, takes little fish;
In some things all, in all things none are crost'd;
Few all they need, but none have all they wish.
Unmingled joys here to no man befall;
Who least, hath some; who most, hath never all.

OLD BALLAD.

METROPOLITAN STOCK SALE YARDS.

Per favour of the Herald.

TO THE MAYOR AND ALDERMEN OF SYDNEY.

GENTLEMEN,—Having no interest or wish at heart but that of the stockowners and the public, I hope you will give what I have got to say on this subject your best attention before fixing upon a site for those yards. I am aware there are interested parties at work endeavouring to palm upon the Council unsuitable ground, and I would like to put the matter before you in its proper light. In fixing the site of the proposed yards, there are three parties whose interests are to be studied—1st, the city butchers, who take fully two-thirds of the stock sold; 2nd, the country buyers, whose purchases amount to about one-third; and 3rd, the stockowners. Now, it is clearly for the convenience of the city butchers that the market should be as near Sydney as possible. On the other hand, it is the interest of the country buyers and of the stockowners that the site should be fixed at some distance from Sydney, for, if it were not, the stock would be depreciated in value through being driven near to Sydney in large lots on the hard narrow roads, and while the country buyer would be put to the trouble and expense of driving them back again, the owner would be obliged to take the price he is offered, as there are no suitable paddocks nearer Sydney than Homebush, where, if not sold, he could turn them out till next sale day. A site should therefore be fixed upon, that while it does not take the city butchers too long away from their business, will save the country buyers and stockowners the loss and inconvenience which have been shown would arise through bringing the stock too close to Sydney, to sites like Petersham or Canterbury. If those premises are correct, then the next question is—"For how many hours can the city butcher leave his business during the forenoon of market day?" After inquiry, I find he can do so quite conveniently for from four to five hours. This would permit of his going a considerable distance from town, by railway, say to Homebush, as the journey out could be done in twenty minutes by the through train, and the return in the same time. They would then have ample time to make their purchases and to be back to attend to their business in the afternoon. This settles the question with respect to the city butchers, and I am confident that if they were fairly asked they would allow that it does.

With respect to the country buyers and stockowners again, Homebush would suit them very well, as there are several good paddock in the vicinity of Homebush, Haslem Creek, and also between that and Parramatta; and, if more are required, which I have no doubt they will be, those on the Liverpool Road and between that and George's River, could easily be made available by cross tracks from the Parramatta to the Liverpool Road.

We must bear in mind, too, that not only do stockowners at times require paddocks near the yards to put stock in before the sale, but butchers themselves need a turn-out for stock till they are ready to slaughter them; and when the carcase trade is, as we hope to see it, more divided than it now is, the demand for turn-out paddocks must increase. It would be the height of folly to make an effort in one direction to break up the present unsatisfactory system of stock sales, and neutralise our efforts in another.

Considerable misapprehension exists with respect to the Melbourne Cattle Yards, of which the advocates for fixing the site of the Sydney yards at Petersham have taken advantage. They say,—"As the Melbourne yards are only some three miles from town, we can surely afford to go four miles from Sydney with ours." Now, although it is true that the Melbourne yards are only three miles from that city, yet there are plenty of good paddocks in their immediate vicinity, to which the overplus of a market can be taken, without subjecting them to the hardship our stock would undergo by their being turned back from Petersham to Canterbury. The argument therefore does not apply, for the Melbourne cattle yards are quite away from the principal thoroughfare, and there are plenty of paddocks on both sides of the Salt Water River, on which the markets are situated.

There is, however, another phase, and I suppose that is, so far as the City Council is concerned, the principal one, to which they have to look, i.e., will stockowners send their sheep and cattle to Canterbury for sale, I believe the majority of them would decline to do so. In considering subjects such as this, we must take things as they are; and when we recollect the peculiar state of the fat stock trade, and how a few large buyers, whose interest it is to keep things as they are, manage to control it as they like, principally through the sales being scattered and irregular, we can see that, if the Corporation wish to make the yards a success, they must study the wishes of the stockowners to the very utmost of their power, otherwise the yards may turn out a losing concern.

I would also, as has been already done by other correspondents, call the attention of the Corporation to the certainty of the Abattoirs being moved to the neighbourhood of the cattle yards. As it is they are a nuisance to two of our most rising suburbs and to the people on the Parramatta Road; and they entail upon the stock a large amount of unnecessary suffering through their having to be driven and kept so near town; while if the Abattoirs were near the yards, and the yards close to the line of railway, all this would be avoided, and the meat could be brought to town more quickly and cleanly than from Glebe Island in the present uninviting carts. The Abattoirs would make very good reformatories and industrial schools, into which they could easily be converted at no great expense.

I have the honour to be, Gentlemen, your most obedient servant,

CITIZEN.

LITIGATION.

To the Editor of the Herald.

SIR,—When litigants complain of the manner in which law or equity suits are conducted, they are usually advised to study the matter before they presume to make any unfavourable comment upon it. If not asserted it is implied that none but a lawyer is competent to question the procedure of the Court. I take leave to dispute that. I maintain that a layman may be competent, not only to understand a legal process, but to improve it, and I need mention no other than Mr. Torrens, who, though not a lawyer, substituted a simple, expeditious, inexpensive, and effectual mode of conveying a title to land, for a mode which was absurdly complicated, tedious, and costly, and which, after all, did not render the title indefeasible.

If no layman may have any say or influence in the arrangements of the Court, it is very certain that the procedure, however favourable it may be to officials, will hardly be satisfactory to suitors. Not only here, but everywhere, the Court has at the beginning been allowed to arrange its own procedure, and everywhere the result has been the same. The arrangements have always been made in view of the interests and convenience of the officials. Left to themselves, the Judges and the lawyers have invariably devised rules, practices, processes, forms, terms, vacations, and customs, which either make more work for the lawyers, or less for the Judges, always at the cost of the litigants, and not seldom sacrificing both law and equity in their operation.

If this be true, and I shall prove its truth, how can any lawyer be expected to question the procedure of the Court?—Not one in a thousand would. Not one, dependent wholly upon his practice, would dare to publish that which must make him obnoxious to the Court and to the profession. Professionally and socially he would become a marked man. If lawyer dare not, and laymen must not, question the procedure of the Court, the institution must assuredly become nothing but a snare and an incubus. In England the higher Courts were nothing else for years upon years till their absurd and iniquitous proceedings were exposed by laymen; and here, short time as the Supreme Court has been established, the Legislature has repeatedly interfered to control the procedure. If a layman's testimony be valueless, surely that of the Legislature must be worth something. I shall cite the Parliament of this colony to give evidence, and if that evidence does not prove the necessity of binding down the Supreme Court to a rational and definite course of procedure, nothing will. We have about, or above, a dozen enactments all bearing upon the procedure of the Supreme Court, and if so much interference on the part of the Legislature was at all necessary, nothing can prove more conclusively the tendency of the Court to become unserviceable to the public by becoming more and more serviceable to the officials or to the profession. The titles of these enactments are of themselves very significant. We have—

First. "An Act to diminish the delay and expense of proceedings in the Supreme Court, in its jurisdiction as a Court of Equity, and in Infancy and Lunacy," 16 Vict., No. 3. Passed in 1852.

Second. "An Act to provide a more summary and expeditious mode of obtaining equitable relief in the Supreme Court in certain cases," 16 Vict., No. 13. Year 1852.

Third. "An Act for further improving the administration of criminal justice," 16 Vict., No. 8. Year 1852.

Fourth. "An Act to amend the Practice and Course of Proceeding in the Supreme Court in Equity," 17 Vict., No. 7. Year 1853.

Fifth. "An Act to amend the Process, Practice, and mode of Pleading at Law in the Supreme Court," 17 Vict., No. 21. Year 1853.

Sixth. "An Act further to amend the Law of Evidence," 18 Vict., No. 13. Year 1854.

Seventh. "An Act for the further amendment of the Process, Practice, and mode of Pleading in the Supreme Court, and for enlarging its Jurisdiction in Common Law Proceedings," 20 Vict., No. 31. Year 1857.

Eighth. "An Act for the further amendment of the Law of Evidence," 22 Vict. No. 7. Year 1858.

Ninth. "An Act to expedite Suits and Proceedings in Equity, and to facilitate the dispatch of business in the Supreme Court in Banco," 22 Vic. No. 14. Year 1858.

It may be said, I think it has been said, that these several enactments were not required to amend, to define, to modify, or to abolish any part of the Court procedure, but to legalise the then existing procedure. If it were so the titles of these Acts were fraudulent. They say nothing about legalising existing procedure, not a word; and I think they must be taken for what they seem, and profess to be—so many efforts on the part of legislators to reform the procedure of the Court. And if the procedure had not been notoriously unsatisfactory, no such legislation would have taken place. If law and equity were [illegible] administered before they passed, they were mere superfluities, originating from nothing, which is scarcely credible.

JOHN STEWART.

MILITARY AND CIVIL CRICKET GROUND.

To the Editor of the Herald.

SIR,—In reply to Mr. Hopkins's letter in Thursday's issue, I beg respectfully to state that I applied on behalf of the United Amateur Athletic Club to Colonel Carthew—a senior officer here—on the 5th instant, for permission to hold the sports on the Military and Civil Cricket Ground, and received an answer dated 7th May, signed R. P. Bishopp, saying the ground will be perfectly at our service on Saturday, 21st instant.

As regards the fencing, we knew nothing of it at the time—and have since ascertained it was knocked down in a fight with some roughs—or we would have made good the damage, and are still willing to do so.

J. K. THOMSON.

May 20.

THE LAST FLOOD AT BRAIDWOOD.—The Dispatch of Wednesday reports that the Shoalhaven River, on Friday last, was nearly as high as it was during the previous flood. It was so high, and with such a strong current running, that the man in charge of the boat at Ward would not venture across in it that day. The mail and passengers from Goulburn on Thursday had to remain at Boro until Sunday, on which day they were brought on to Braidwood, but no further mails had reached Boro from Goulburn up to that day. The police with the return gold escort got across Reedy Creek on Saturday, but they had to leave the coach behind. The mail coach, which arrived on Monday, brought the remaining overdue mails up to Saturday, as well as a number of passengers. We stated last week that we had been informed that the Postmaster-General had forwarded a boat to Goulburn to be brought to the Shoalhaven for conveying the mails across the river. The information was premature, however, and incorrect. Two or three gentlemen connected with the district waited upon the Postmaster-General, and had been informed by him that a boat would be sent up, but nothing has been since heard of it. A boat was subsequently sent up to Goulburn on the railway; but we now learn that its destination was Yass, and not here. Were it not for the boat which has been made for the emergency out of a hollow log, by some diggers on the Shoalhaven, we should be cut off from all communication with the remainder of the colony by the overland route, and would have to depend solely upon the Clyde route for reaching the metropolis. The last flood washed away several bridges on the Clyde road, but temporary structures have been since put up by direction of Mr. Weber. We hear that the flood at Nelligen was nearly as high as the previous one, it being 10 feet above high water mark. Although it entered the store no damage was done this time to any of the goods, the greater portion of them having been removed from it before the flood, and the remainder being secured from injury. Messrs. Kelly's, Tweedie and Weston's, Polias's, Bennimon's, and Summers's goods were removed to Guy's, and Messrs. Blatchford's, Newman and Co.'s and O'Brien's to Lee's. The flood was also very high in Araluen, but as none of the claims had opened out again the injury sustained was trifling. An engine which was on the mountain road on Saturday, for the Try Again claim, has been over two months coming from the Goulburn railway station. These frequent heavy floods following each other in such quick succession are cutting up and washing away the soil in all directions, and deep creeks and huge fissures are being made where the ground has hitherto remained unbroken by floods in the wettest seasons.

CATTLE FROM SOUTH AMERICA.—The Daily Telegraph thinks it is satisfactory that the experiment of importing live cattle in steamers from the regions of the River Plate has proved so far a success. The Ariadne, the second vessel in which the attempt has been made, has brought over from South America, and landed in safety and sound health, 344 bullocks, 300 sheep, 6 cows, 5 calves, and 7 horses. These animals were shipped in good condition, were well-fed and watered during their passage across the Atlantic, and, though the voyage was longer and rougher than usual, they improved during the transport. One test has still to be encountered, but that is crucial—will the transaction leave a profit to the importer? Assuming that such a question can be answered in the affirmative, we shall then certainly have advanced a step nearer to the solution of the great meat problem. At the same time it would be well not to expect too much from the new intercourse thus opened up. The arrival, once a month or once a fortnight, of a steamer with a few hundred Argentine bullocks onboard, will have less effect on our food supplies and prices, than the unrecorded receipt of as many tins of extractum carnis from Australia. It would be a mere drop in the ocean of our vast needs. Steamers will not go from England to Buenos Ayres empty to bring home cattle, and what we have first to do is to create a trade between the two countries sufficient to give a large fleet of vessels constant employment out of home.

It is a useful bit of machinery—so is man! It often gets out of order—so does man. It is often wound up—so is man! It strikes—so does man! It is not always to be relied on—no more is man! Mr. G. M. Pitt reports having sold this day 90 wethers, C. A. Massey's, at £1 2s. 4d. each.

The wet weather that prevailed for most of the week has had a depressing effect upon mercantile transactions in general, and quotations are based to a large extent upon the trade proceedings. Ale in bulk is in good demand, sales being made from the ship's side at full rates. The inquiry for bottled is diminished, and stocks are excessive. Recent importations of brandy have for the most part gone off at full rates, and we notice an improved price for Hennessy's case and Martell's. Bags, no alteration. Sales of candles have been made at full rates; stocks at present quite equal to demand. The stocks of cement to hand and to arrive are nearly all in one hand, and the prices, which have not advanced, are barely remunerative. Small parcels of cheese to hand by recent arrivals command extreme prices. Coffee sales have been made to the trade at about 9½d. for fine samples. Of cordials the stocks are scant. Sardines are in demand; other fish remain as last quoted. Fruits remain stationary, the supply equalling the demand. In geneva there is little doing. We notice an importation, during the week, of about 4000 or 5000 cases to add to stocks. Hams are in good demand, bacon scarce. English hops, fine samples, are sought for, and are quoted, 1868's, at 1s. 4d to 1s. 8d. Parcels of lead are offered at about £26. There are heavy supplies of malt, and importers are pressing it upon the market freely. Oatmeal is in good demand—sales of Australian at 27s. Of oakum the stocks are large, and it is being offered at low prices. The market is clear of opium. Oils are firmer, and in some instances improved rates are quoted. Kerosene is very scarce. The pepper market continues exceedingly bare. Pickles are being sold at from 6s. to 8s., according to quality. Fine brands of porter command extreme rates; the markets are full, and the supply in bulk excessive. The stocks of rice are insufficient to meet daily demands. We notice a decline in rum; stocks are full, the importations during the week heavy, and holders are anxious to sell. In salt the stocks are heavy, and there is little doing. Of schnapps the market is cleared. In slates, as in other building materials, there is little doing. Of soda ash, caustic, carbonate, and crystals, there is a full supply, and little trade doing. Sugars have declined in consequence of recent importations to Melbourne markets, which rule ours. The stocks of tea are full, with little inquiry. In tobacco there is a decline for twist. Whiting, very dull. Imported wines are fast giving way to Australian grown. Woolpacks are in good demand, and advanced prices are being submitted to. There is little or no change in the market for breadstuffs, excepting in regard to a few parcels of Port Macdonnell and New South Wales wheat, which have been placed at a shade under last week's quotations. There is a steady demand for best Adelaide kinds, but with other kinds of colonial grown the market is abundantly stocked, while there is but a limited demand. Many of the bakers appear to be well stocked with other colonial kinds and short of Adelaide to use with them. Adelaide best flour is quite as firm in price as it was last week, with rather an improved demand. There have been a good many arrivals lately, but the bad weather has checked supplies from the interior, and we learn indirectly that a good deal of our wheat, thrashed, and in stack, has been damaged by the late floods. Best Adelaide wheat is in demand at from 5s. 10d. to 6s.

From 50 to 60 tuns sperm oil ex Onward changed hands to-day, price withheld.

THE LATE COUNT MONTALEMBERT ON PAPAL INFALLIBILITY.

(From the Times.)

THE subjoined is a translation of a letter which Count Montalembert has felt himself called upon to write, in reply to a person who had pointed out to him what he considered a flagrant contradiction between his former speeches in the Chamber of Peers against Gallicanism and his present adhesion to the protest of Father Gratry against the absolute supremacy and separate infallibility of the Pope. The letter is dated Paris, the 28th of February, 1870, and was written only a few days before the Count's death.

"Sir,—Since you are good enough to interest yourself in my former speeches and in my present opinions, you, perhaps, are aware that I for several years past have suffered from an incurable malady which forbids my writing and walking, and only at long intervals leaves me sufficient leisure, and my mind sufficiently free, to busy myself with the labours or the questions to which my life has been devoted. Thus will be explained to you my very involuntary delay in replying to the letter you did me the honour to address to me on the 16th of this month, respecting the contradiction you think you discern between my speeches on the Chapter of St. Denys, in the Chamber of Peers in 1847, and my approbation of the recent letters addressed by Father Gratry to Monseigneur the Archbishop of Malines. I desire first to thank you, Sir, for having thus afforded me an opportunity of reverting to a period now so distant, at the same time that I explain myself on the questions of the day.

"That said, I beg you to observe that the Gallicanism of which I was the resolute and victorious adversary twenty-five years ago had only the name in common with that with which you reproach the Rev. Father Gratry. The Gallicanism I then called a mummy was no other than that which my old colleague and friend, Count Daru, ridiculed the other day when he said, in replying to M. Rouland, 'You are mistaking the century.' It was solely the oppressive or vexatious intervention of the temporal power in spiritual interests, an interference which a portion of our old and illustrious French clergy had sometimes too easily accepted. But I venture to say that you will not find, any more in my speech of 1847 than in my other speeches or writing, a single word in conformity with the doctrines or pretensions of the Ultramontanes of the present day; and that for an excellent reason—which is, that nobody had thought of advocating or raising them during the period between my entrance into public life and the advent of the Second Empire. Never, thank Heaven, have I thought, said, or written anything favourable to the personal and separate infallibility of the Pope, such as it is sought to impose upon us; nor to the theocracy, the dictatorship of the Church, which I did my best to reprobate in that history of the "Monks of the West," of which you are pleased to appreciate the laborious fabric; nor to that "Absolutism of Rome," of which the speech that you quote disputed the existence, even in the Middle Ages, but which to-day forms the symbol and the programme of the faction dominant among us.

"Assuredly, if any one would kindly point out to me anything to correct or to retract in what I may have spoken from the tribune of the Luxembourg, or from that of the Palais Bourbon, and if I felt convinced of my wrong, it would be in no way painful to me to confess him in the right, for where is the public man to whom twenty-three years of experience and of revolutions have not taught something?

"But when I read again with you my words of 1847, I find nothing, or scarcely anything, to change in them. I feel that, did the occasion arise, I again to-day should oppose all against which I then contended, and that I should proclaim, now as then, the reciprocal incompetence of the Church and of the State outside the boundary of their proper domain, without desiring that their mutual independence should lead to their absolute separation.

"At the same time I willingly admit that, if I have nothing to cancel I should have a great deal to add. I sinned by omission, or rather by want of foresight. I said, 'Gallicanism is dead, because it made itself the servant of the State; you have now only to inter it.' I think I then spoke the truth. It was dead and completely dead. How, then, has it risen again? I do not hesitate to reply. In consequence of the lavish encouragement given, under the pontificate of Pius IX., to exaggerated doctrines outraging the good sense as well as the honour of the human race,—doctrines of which not even the coming shadow was perceptible under the Parliamentary Monarchy.

"There is wanting, then, to that speech, as to the one I made in the National Assembly on the Roman expedition, essential reservations against spiritual despotism, against absolute monarchy, which I have always detested in the State, and which does not inspire me with less repugnance in the Church.

"But, now, what Count Daru ridiculed to suspicion that the liberal Pontificate of Pius IX., proclaimed by all the Liberals of the two worlds, would become the pontificate represented and personified by the Univers and Civiltà? In the midst of the unanimous cries then uttered by the clergy in favour of liberty as in Belgium, of liberty in everything and for all, how could we foresee as possible the incredible wheelsbout of almost all that same clergy in 1852—the enthusiasm of most of the Ultramontane doctors for the revival of Cæsarism? The harangues of Monseigneur Parisis, the charges of Monseigneur de Salinis, and especially the permanent triumph of those lay theologians of absolutism who began by squandering all our liberties, all our principles, all our former ideas, before Napoleon III., and afterwards immolated justice and truth, reason and history, in one great holocaust to the idol they raised up for themselves at the Vatican?

"If that word idol seems to you too strong, be pleased to lay the blame on what Monseigneur Sibour, Archbishop of Paris, wrote to me on the 10th of September, 1853:—'The new Ultramontane school leads us to a double idolatry—the idolatry of the temporal power and the spiritual power. When you formerly, like ourselves, M. le Comte, made loud professions of Ultramontanism you did not understand things thus. We defended the independence of the spiritual power against the pretensions and encroachments of the temporal power, but we respected the constitution of the State and the constitution of the Church. We did not do away with all intermediate power, all heirarchy, all reasonable discussion, all legitimate resistance, all individuality, all spontaneity. The Pope and the Emperor were not one the whole Church and the other the whole State. Doubtless there are times when the Pope may set himself above all the rules which are only for ordinary times, and when his power is as extensive as the necessities of the Church. The old Ultramontanes kept this in mind, but they did not make of the exception a rule. The new Ultramontanes have pushed everything to extremes, and have abounded in hostile arguments against all liberties—those of the State as well as those of the Church. If such systems were not calculated to compromise the most serious religious interests at the present time, and especially at a future day, one might be content with despising them, but when one has a presentiment of the evils they are preparing for us it is difficult to be silent and resigned. You have therefore done well, M. le Comte, to stigmatise them.

"Thus, Sir, did the pastor of the vastest diocese in Christendom express himself seventeen years ago, congratulating me upon one of my first protests against the spirit which, since then, I have never ceased to combat. For it is not to-day, it was in 1852 that I began to struggle against the detestable political and religious aberrations which make up contemporary Ultramontanism.

"Here, then, traced by the pen of an Archbishop of Paris, is the explanation of the mystery that preoccupies you, and of the contrast you point out between my Ultramontanism of 1847 and my Gallicanism of 1870.

"Therefore, without having either the will or the power to discuss the question now debating in the Council, I hail with the most grateful admiration, first, the great and generous Bishop of Orleans, then the eloquent and intrepid priests who have had the courage to place themselves across the path of the torrent of adulation, imposture, and servility by which we risk being swallowed up. Thanks to them, Catholic France will not have remained too much below Germany, Hungary, and America. I publicly pride myself, and more than I can express by words, to have them for friends and for brother academicians. I have but one regret, that of being prevented by illness from descending into the arena in their suite, not, certainly, on the ground of theology, but on that of history and of the social and political consequences of the system they contend against. Thus should I deserve my share (and it is of the only ambition remaining to me) in those litanies obsès daily launched against my illustrious friends by a too numerous portion of that poor clergy which prepares for itself so sad a destiny, and which I formerly loved, defended, and honoured as it had not yet been by any in modern France.

"I thank you once more, Sir, for having enabled me thus to say what I think, and I should be a great deal more obliged to you if I could hope that you would obtain the publication of this letter in one of the journals with which your opinions must put you in intercourse.

"Accept, &c.,

"CH. DE MONTALEMBERT."

FASHIONS OF THE PERIOD.

(From the Medical Press and Circular.)

Does modern education lead us to a more correct estimate of the beauties of nature, or convert us from the conventional to the true ideal of perfection and of beauty? We fear not. We pity the poor ignorant savages of the continent of America when we read of their perverted taste, exemplified by the custom of modelling the form of their crania into as near an approach as possible to the cubic, by inclosing the growing heads of their tender infants in strong and unyielding wooden boxes. We are amused at the gait of the Chinese ladies as they hobble along on those stunted pediments which might have been useful feet if their growth had not been checked by the early and persevering application of bandages in conformity with their civilised ideal of beauty. The tattooed features of the South Sea Islanders, and the befeathered heads of the Obeibways, excite our laughter and contempt. Now, in truth, we are, even in the matter of harmless personal adornment, not a whit in advance of our so-called savage brothers and sisters; as witness our men's hats adorned with peacocks' feathers, &c., &c.; our women's hats, no longer used as head coverings, but as brow shades, and ornamented with flying plumes gathered from the tails of the dunghill cocks; our black stain for the eyelids and "bleu pour les veines"—our forms of tattooing. But in baneful adornments we fall far behind the savage people, and to this phase of false taste we wish to draw special attention.

We commenced these remarks with the relation of a case of ruined constitution, disease, and death, caused by the systematic use of tight lacing. This hurtful habit, now greatly on the increase, is generally misunderstood. Ladies give what they consider a satisfactory reply to the charge of tight lacing. "I assure you that I could put my hand between my stays and waist." This may be true or not, it matters little, for the evil consists in the gradual modelling of the waist by systematic pressure begun in girlhood. The size of the waist is in this manner prevented from further growth, its normal development being arrested so as to perpetuate the slender waist of the child, while all other parts are allowed to expand into the natural bulk of woman. This, and not the amount of pressure necessary to maintain the small size, is the real evil. The small waist is made, not so much by actual squeezing as by the maintenance of a rigorous cointure that prevents all further development. The evils arising from this stunted and shrunken waist have been so often described as to require no notice here. The next harmful of the modern female decoration is, perhaps, the chignon. The girl of the period is not satisfied with only one head, but adds head to head in Siamese-twins' fashion. Is it "that one small head can" not "carry all" she knows? But as these remarks are intended, not for artistic, but physiological purposes, we must not discuss the merits of the chignon in its ornamental capacity; we will merely observe that since its introduction cases of brain fevers are enormously on the increase, being nearly doubled in number. Headaches are also much more prevalent. These consequences might be anticipated from the use of a machine so powerfully retentive of animal heat.

The paniers, being harmless exaggerations, may be passed without comment, but the high-heeled shoes and boots merit notice. The necessary result of the use of these instruments of torture is a great increase of pressure against the toes, giving rise to distortions, corns, callosities, &c., for the feet are placed on a sloping instead of a flat surface. The instep becomes flattened, and the much admired arch of the foot falls to a level or more. The ankle joint loses its proper bearings; all the weight of the body being placed on its posterior surface, it gradually loses form. The muscles of the calf, by the relaxation of the tendo achillis, waste in bulk and acquires a tendency to spasm. Ease, elegance, and dignity of gait are rapidly lost, and a nervous totter is as rapidly acquired.

But of all the hurtful customs growing out of perversion of taste, the worst is, we think, the alternate wrapping and denuding the chest and shoulders. The tender and sensitive young lady who enjoys the warmth of fur and other wrappings during the carriage drive or morning walk, is in the evening exposed, with denuded bosom and shoulders to the draughty atmosphere of the opera-house or the ball-room. To enable our delicately-nurtured English matrons and maidens to resist such extreme changes would require an amount of vigour rarely possessed by them, and consumption too often follows, as a natural consequence, the gaieties of the London season. We feel that we are touching on delicate ground, but our interest in the well-being of our fair fellow-country women makes us reckless of all censure. We therefore boldly assert that, however a low dress may suit the ballet-dancers, it is both unseemly and dangerous to our matrons and maidens. We have not exhausted our comments on the girls of the period, and, should we escape excommunication from the drawing-rooms, we shall add a few more paragraphs at some future time, after the fashion of a lady's postscript.

QUEENSLAND.

PORT CURTIS DISTRICT.

That extensive, valuable, and unique CATTLE STATION, known as comprising the whole of CURTIS ISLAND, situated in PORT CURTIS, and to which access can be easily had from the mainland at low tide.

The improvements are very extensive, and of a substantial character.

With this Station will be sold
2000 HEAD OF CATTLE, more or less,
a mixed herd, quiet, and well bred.

 Stores, Horses, Boats, Furniture, and other belongings to be taken by valuation in the usual way.

RICHARDSON and WRENCH have received instructions from the Proprietor to sell by public auction, at the Rooms, Pitt-street, Sydney, on MONDAY, the 13th June next, at 11 o'clock,

The above valuable cattle property.

Monte Christo embraces the northern half of CURTIS ISLAND, under a lease for 10 years, and enjoys the use of the rest of the island, until such time as it be selected for absolute purchase, together the run comprises an area of about of richly grassed fattening country, abundantly watered throughout by numerous creeks and permanent water-holes. Monte Christo is distant from the town of Gladstone about 20 miles by water and 45 by land. Access to the main land is afforded twice every month at low water Spring-tides, when cattle can be crossed over without the slightest danger, at all other times the sea forms a natural fence against cattle straying or being stolen. The crossing place is guarded by a secure fence, and the run is also subdivided by fencing. Its carrying capabilities are reckoned at 12,000 head of cattle, in all seasons.

The IMPROVEMENTS comprise an excellent ten-roomed DWELLING HOUSE, recently erected, without regard to cost, containing every comfort and convenience requisite for a gentleman's family. There are also a detached kitchen with two rooms. Six-roomed building, containing store, laundry, meat house, &c., and men's hut of 4 rooms.

Boiling and milking sheds, and at the landing place are erected a boat shed and receiving house.

The STOCKYARDS are newly built, and comprise the latest improvements for economising labour. They are capable of working 10,000 head of cattle. Most of these buildings are erected on 1297 acres of land (obtained under the Queensland Land Act, in right of improvements) securely fenced, and beautifully situated on Monte Christo Creek. Another very valuable parcel of 840 acres, similarly acquired, is situated at the southern end of the Island, opposite Gladstone; and on it are erected a four-roomed cottage, kitchen, stockyard, &c.

With this compact Station will be sold,
2000 HEAD OF CATTLE, more or less, to be mustered and delivered.

☞ This remarkable island property is now merely brought into the market in consequence of its present proprietor being a resident in Europe. As a cattle station it is unique, securely enclosed by the sea, and subdivided into paddocks; it can be worked at a trifling expense, whilst the fattening qualities of its luxuriant grass and herbage also insure its being a profitable investment. It may be said to have a market for fat stock at its own door (Gladstone), as well as being situated in the very centre of the increasing trade in live stock already established between Gladstone and several ports in New Zealand.

An inspection of Cattle and Station is invited.
Plan on view at the Rooms.

Terms, liberal.

Of the following first-class Station Property, belonging to the Mount Hutton Company, in consequence of the expiration of partnership, viz.,

LOT 1.—MOUNT HUTTON,
with 72,380 Sheep, more or less
3,000 Cattle, ditto ditto.

LOT 2.—BOXVALE,
with 10,000 Sheep, more or less
500 Cattle, ditto ditto.

Machinery to be taken at a fixed sum. Rations and Store Goods at cost price, with present rate of carriage added, and all Horses, Working Plant, and other belongings by valuation in the usual way.

TERMS.—One-third cash; balance by bills at one, two, and three years, with 8 per centum per annum interest added thereto, and secured upon the stations, stock, and premises by mortgage in the usual way.

RICHARDSON and WRENCH have received instructions from the MOUNT HUTTON COMPANY (whose partnership expires by effluxion of time on the 1st of May next) to offer for positive sale by public auction, at their Rooms, Pitt-street, Sydney, on MONDAY, 13th June next, at 11 o'clock,

The above well-known pastoral properties, viz.,

LOT 1.—MOUNT HUTTON.

This magnificent property embraces eleven blocks of country well defined by water-sheds, and containing a measured area of 660 square miles of sound, healthy, richly grassed, and well-watered pasturage, consisting principally of myall plains and open box forest, covered with blue and oaten grasses, and abounding in salt bush and a large variety of fattening herbage. The whole of the run is available, being intersected by numerous permanent creeks.

MOUNT HUTTON is situated about 200 miles from the present railway terminus at Dalby, hence carriage is cheap and speedy; and the contemplated extension of the railway to Roma, about 60 miles distant from the station, will afford immense facilities and reduce the item of carriage to a mere trifle.

The IMPROVEMENTS on Mount Hutton are very extensive, substantial, and thoroughly complete. Amongst them may be mentioned the HEAD STATION, comprising a DWELLING-HOUSE of seven rooms, with hall and wide verandah; detached kitchen; large garden, stocked with vines and fruit-trees in full bearing, the whole securely enclosed by a neat paling fence; large store; meat-house, overseer's cottage; men's huts; cart-shed; stable and blacksmith's shop; three horse paddocks; and stockyards for cattle and horses. At the overseer's, 16 miles from the head station, there are house, store, men's huts, and horse paddock; and at the cattle station there are overseer's and men's huts, and very complete and substantial stockyards, capable of working 5000 head of cattle.

FENCING.—A large outlay has been made in this important item during the last two years, and a great extent of country enclosed. The paddocks now completed (nine in number) are CARRYING 50,000 SHEEP, and at a comparatively small outlay additional paddocks might be easily formed, which would bring up that accommodation equal to carry 120,000 sheep and 5000 cattle in any season. The chief fences are of wire, log and chock, and log and brush, and are all in excellent order.

The WOOLSHED is conveniently arranged with accommodation for 27 shearers, and the WOOL STORES will hold 200 bales. The press-room is fitted with Fulton and Co.'s patent rack and pulley press, nearly new. The WASHPOOL is formed by a substantial dam on one of the main creeks, and holds sufficient water to wash 100,000 sheep. It is in first-rate order, and with its machinery is equal to spout-wash 2000 sheep a day. The machinery, which is all nearly new, comprises a Clayton and Shuttleworth's portable 14-horse power steam engine and a Gwynne's 13-inch centrifugal pump; there is also a saw bench, with gear complete, all in first-rate condition.

[illegible]0 acres of purchased land, about 8 miles from the Head Station, are erected a public-house and other improvements now let at £50 per annum. There are also many other improvements on various parts of the Run, but too numerous to particularise in an advertisement.

With Mount Hutton will be sold the following stock, viz.,

SHEEP.

Ewes,	26,200 more or less
Ditto now lambing,	7,070 ditto
Wethers	25,960 ditto
Weaners	12,440 ditto
Rams	620 ditto
Total	72,380 more or less

 These sheep are of a superior description; the ewe flocks have always been carefully classed and culled, and improved by the introduction of half-bred Negretti rams. The clip ranks as fine clothing, a description of wool of great value, and rising in demand in the English market. Further particulars, with specification of ages of the sheep, may be obtained on application at the Rooms.

CATTLE.

3000 HEAD, more or less

A well-bred and quiet herd, the progeny of the noted D in diamond, and OHO cattle. First-class bulls have been added from time to time.

LOT 2—BOXVALE.

This property consists of four blocks, containing about 185 square miles of well grassed and permanently watered country, situated on the DAWSON RIVER, about 30 miles from Mount Hutton. This station during the last trying drought carried 26,000 sheep and 800 cattle, and in average seasons is quite equal to depasture 30,000 sheep and 1500 head of cattle.

The IMPROVEMENTS comprise house, store, and men's huts, with sheep yards and shepherd's huts. Also, paddock and stockyards.

With this station will be sold
10,000 SHEEP, more or less
500 CATTLE, ditto ditto.

 Both descriptions of stock are of equally good quality with those belonging to the Mount Hutton property.

☞ Messrs. Richardson and Wrench can, with perfect confidence, recommend to the particular attention of capitalists the above properties,—of which space compels them to furnish merely an outline,—as it is very seldom, except as in the present case the necessity for winding up a partnership, that pastoral properties of such importance and value, and upon which so large an outlay, under experienced direction, has been made, are brought into the market for unreserved sale to the highest bidder. A thorough inspection is respectfully invited by intending purchasers, to whom letters of introduction will be given on application, and every assistance afforded them on the station for making a complete examination of both Runs and Stock.

Plans on view at the Rooms, where all further information concerning the above properties may be obtained.
